Comments: The workshop was informative as it gave us chance to share our experiences with the experts from Korea who have done some work on waste management in other countries. The examples presented from other countries taught us on how we can handle similar challenges, and specifically was excited to hear that that closing the land fill should be just stop dumping as compared to the land fill which we had in mind. I am also happy for the capacity building objective of the project.

Comments:

The project "Strengthening Waste Management Policy Making in Uganda in Response to climate change has two components: (1) Prefeasibility Study involving literature review and Collection of gases from Kiteezi landfill; (2) Capacity Building.

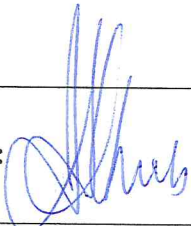

There is need to build capacity in solid waste management practices and ~~processes~~ strategy formulation. to ensure effective ~~response~~ solid waste management policy development and implementation in Uganda.

Comments: Quite an interesting project but below are my concerns: ① what if the gas (GHGs) aren't enough to sustain the project to as specified time, what could be the way forward. ② Instead why do we invest into the conveyor belt system and promote sorting as the waste is conveyed to the final disposal site. ③ In capacity building, why do we support the private companies doing value addition <sup>(ie recycling &amp; energy recovery)</sup> to waste being sorted and move away from collection and dumping as it is currently. ④ Kiteezi to turn into a park after rehabilitation needs total closure meaning KCCA has to move to a new waste disposal site. Thank you.

Comments: Let us have a budget for sensitization on waste management (segregation) in communities, this will help us to reduce on the waste which goes to the landfill. There is also need to on how to handle the different types of waste like E-waste, medical waste etc, this will help our community members to have knowledge on handling such waste and also where to take them or whom to take them.

Comments: Its a good initiative but we need more investment and partnership in doing solid waste management sensitization and awareness on Segregation (Sort it) on site. Due to the people of Kampala, the amount of waste generated about 12000 tons per day but we do not have a proper system to manage it. We need to invest in the waste management system and also create awareness on the same. I request that, next time increase the number of other chance of partnering with KCCA. We want to partner with KCCA in sensitization and awareness.

Comments: The concept is welcome and very vital in giving an informed decision on the best practices to handle waste generated within the city. The mandate of the Authority is to provide a clean and habitable city to the people of Kampala through strategic urbanization and governing regulations. We have to involve private actor how best they can manage waste from generation to final disposal by applying the best practices. This would require information sharing on how best it has been handled in other countries were success has been registered. This will address the challenges we currently face. I am happy for the opportunity to participate & objective of the project/workshop.

Comments: - The workshop was informative and enriching in waste management and sustainable use of landfill. - I have been able to learn about the various technologies in landfill gas harvesting. - However there is need for more funding and strengthening in the areas of local capacity building for private companies. - And also need to fund some research in the waste management sector. - Willing to work with you and offer the support needed.
